“ There are just too many memories in my head and most of them are with My Isabelle, her family moved into the apartment right next door to our apartment , and if you opened our door and they opened their door there was just a narrow hall between us , we were like one big family at the that time Isabelle and I was just about 5 years old we both turned 5 in that July her on the 10th and me on the 29th , we started school together , and played in our hallway all the time , I only have space on here for one memory , so here goes , Isabelle , Rosalie (our third partner in crime) and I would climb on up into an open delivery truck and hide , the driver would not see us and close the doors, we would say to each other " as soon as he gets to his next stop we will just jump off , well this one day his next stop was not anywhere in Astoria , it was in Brooklyn , when we got off the truck and found out were we were , we got so scared (we were maybe 11 or 12) but not Isabelle , she said shut up and let me do the talking , she would stop a adult on the street and say with (fake tears) can you please help us we got off the train on the wrong stop and now we have not money to get back home , so they would give us a dime each to take the train home , (this was back in 1951/2) anyway she kept doing this for blocks and blocks , by the time we started to go back home on the train we each had about 60 and sometimes 70 cents , so we would first stop and have an eggcream or an banana split and then hope on the train and come home , My Isabelle was the most fun to hang out with , rest my Issie , you will be missed my many and loved by all that knew you , love you always , Barbara and Bob Iuliani (your porkie)

“ There aren't enough words to describe my friendship over the years with dear Isabelle, we grew up together on Astoria Blvd...then when my family moved to 19th Street in 1963, Ida and Isabelle soon followed and moved across the street from us, again. I remember weekends the phone would ring and Ida would say "Put up the Coffee, we're coming over" and always a lot of fun. When Isabelle married Teddy, they lived around the corner on 21st Street, we were always out shopping or in Astoria Park with Little Teddy. We lost touch once Isabelle moved upstate, but she was always in my heart, she was a big sister to me always....I am so glad to have so many memories to remember always of special time.....long ago !! Rest in Peace, dear friend....Love you, Nancy (Nutsy) xox
